Re. American Civil Liberties Union of Oregon v. Verizon Northwest Inc., United Telephone Company of the Northwest dba Sprint, and Qwest Corporation
UM Docket 1265

Dear Commissioners:

As you know from our Complaint of May 24, 2006, the ACLU of Oregon is deeply concerned about allegations reported in USA Today and other major media outlets that various telecommunications companies have provided the National Security Agency (“NSA”) with the personal calling details of customers, including telephone numbers called, time, date, and direction of calls. If these reports are true, telecommunication companies have systematically and flagrantly violated the privacy rights of their customers by sharing information that reveals their associations, interests and a host of personal details about their lives.

We are not alone in that concern. Since ACLU complaints were filed with various public utility commissions across the country, the public utilities commission of Vermont has launched investigations regarding phone companies disclosing customer records to the NSA. The state of Washington’s public utilities commission is holding public hearings on the subject and Maine is considering a full-scale investigation, as well. In other states, such as California and Illinois, there are court actions pending regarding the release of phone company records to the NSA.

In addition to actions by regulators and courts, individuals are raising their voice to demand a full and fair accounting of what telecommunications companies have done with their phone records. The ACLU has been contacted by tens of thousands of individuals nationwide. In Oregon, to date, 1,774 individuals have asked us to share their name with you and let you know that they support the ACLU of Oregon’s Complaint and want the Oregon Public Utility Commission to fully investigate the matter.
